

FIVE SHOTS ARE FIRED BY SUICIDE

Keyser, W. Va., Farmer, Despondent, Persists in Attempt to Meet Death.

KEYSER, W. Va., Nov. 22.—In his successful attempt at suicide he required five shots from a .32-caliber revolver, which John W. Leatherman, aged sixty, fired at his head at his home on New Creek drive, near Keyser, W. Va.

All the shots glanced off with the exception of one. Death was instantaneous.

Leatherman recently sold a fine farm on New Creek drive and had been living at the home of Mrs. Annie Leatherman, widow of Warner Leatherman. He was separated from his wife, who was Miss Emma Reed and is now residing at Altoona, Pa.

Mrs. Anna Leatherman had been

3 p. m.—Harry Kummerow.
3:30 p. m.—Senator McKinley of Illinois.
3:45 p. m.—Senator Watson of Indiana.

In Keyser and on her return home she was met by her little daughter, who told her "Uncle John had blood on his head," and asked what it meant. Just then she saw him go behind a straw stack near the house and heard the last shot. He had been at the stack before and had returned to his room to reload the revolver after he had fired the shots against his head and the bullets had glanced.

Leatherman was well-to-do and it is thought he was despondent because of lack of companionship.

CARBAUH SINGS TO D.C. MUSIC LOVERS

Popular Baritone Heard in Joint Recital With Samson Noble.

Washington knows Earl Carbaue and what he can do. Consequently it needed little advertising to have a large and appreciative audience assemble in the Playhouse, 1814 N street northwest, last night, to hear this popular baritone give a joint recital with Samson Noble, a Russian violinist, who has lately made Washington his home.

To proclaim the dramatic quality, the warmth and color of Mr. Carbaue's voice is unnecessary. It is too widely known to music lovers of this city.

Opens With "Bandolero." The swashbuckling "Bandolero," by Stuart, opened Mr. Carbaue's portion of the program. Other numbers by this artist that particularly pleased the audience were "I Wonder If Ever the Rose" (Slater); "The Wreck of the Julie Plante" (Goffrey O'Hara); "Ma Little Banjo" (Dichmont); "The Pauper's Drive" (Homer); "When the Roses Bloom" (Reichardt); "Didn't It Rain" (Burleigh); and "Ma Curly-headed Baby" (Clutnam).

Mr. Noble is a distinct acquisition to Washington. He plays at future recitals like he did last night he is assured of a warm welcome at the municipal hearthside.

Credit Due Accompanist. With rare ability he played the spirited Concerto in A minor by Vivaldi Nachez, "Meditation" from "Thais" (Massenet); "Chanson" (Conperin-Kreisler); "Scherzo" (Van Loen); "Air on a G String" (Bach); and "Hejre-Kati" (Hubay).

Too much credit cannot be given Lillian Carbaue for her effective accompaniment to her husband's singing, and to Eula Conway, who accompanied Mr. Noble.

WOMEN WITH BUCKETS

FIGHT FIRE IN CHURCH

Women of Tuxedo, Md., saved their town from damage yesterday morning when they organized a bucket line to quench the flames which destroyed the Magruder Christian Church. They kept up their work until arrival of a District fire company from Benning.

Fortunately, twenty-five school children temporarily housed in the church were at recess when the fire, originating in a defective flue, broke out. Miss Helen McDonald, teacher, discovered the fire. She notified Mrs. Nettie Rusk, who telephoned the alarm to Washington. The building, valued at $5,000 was partly covered by insurance.

BRIDE CUTS RED TAPE TO JOIN HUSBAND

Honorable Discharge From Navy Gets Her Passport for Spain.

Equal rights for women sometimes have their disadvantages as well as advantages.

This has been forcibly impressed upon the bride of Clarence P. Heick, an artist, whose wedding took place in his studio in New York city on September 30 last.

The bride formerly was Miss Patricia E. Smith, born in Belfast, Ireland. She served during the recent war as a yeoman third class in the Third naval district, New York, and was released from active duty April 14, 1919. Her husband is a native-born American citizen.

Now, here's where the trouble comes in. Eight days before the wedding the separate citizenship law, passed by Congress as a part of the program of equal rights demand by women, went into effect. Mrs. Heick, therefore, was a British subject, while her husband was an American.

In October the groom was called to Spain on an important business trip. He expected to return within a few weeks, but subsequently notified her he would have to remain abroad for considerable time and asked her to join him.

She went to the passport division at the custom house in New York and made application for a passport, but was refused on the ground that she was not an American citizen.

Then the British consul denied her a British passport because she had married an American citizen, and, therefore, no longer was a British subject under British law.

Merton A. Sturges, chief of the United States naturalization bureau in New York, next told her he could not do anything for her. Mrs. Heick appealed to County Clerk James A. Donegan, of New York, and he sent her to see Congressman Isaac Siegel.

Mr. Siegel today announced that he had found a remedy, and the bride and groom will be reunited. He obtained for Mrs. Heick an honorable discharge from the navy, to which she was entitled, and this made her eligible for American citizenship. A law enacted in 1918 provides that any person who saw naval or military service during the war and had an honorable discharge must be granted citizenship upon application.

Therefore, Mrs. Heick's application for citizenship will be heard and granted in the supreme court of New York on Friday of this week, Siegel stated. Officials of the State Department have ordered that a passport then be granted her, and she expects to sail immediately for Spain and her husband.

HOSPITAL RADIO FAD STARTED BY BOY

Francis Murray's Idea When Ill May Cheer Patients Permanently.

Bedside radio outfits for hospital patients?

The fad has been launched by a Washington boy and promises to be one of the most popular innovations in recent years.

Just because he had to stay in a hospital was no reason for giving up the pursuit of his hobby, decided Francis Murray, sixteen-year-old Washington radio prodigy, who lives at 1333 Massachusetts avenue southeast.

Francis is the lad who rigged up the first bicycle radio receiving apparatus seen in Washington. While riding around town on his bike he could receive messages from his boy friends or musical programs or the sporting results from the bigger broadcasting stations.

When he was taken ill about ten days ago and the family physician diagnosed his trouble as appendicitis and ordered an immediate operation, Francis made arrangements immediately for having a radio set at his bedside when he "came to" following the operation.

The lad was taken to George Washington University Hospital, where the operation was performed early last week. The boy's friends got in touch with Thomas J. Williams, of Thomas J. Williams, Inc., from whom he had bought all his radio equipment. Mr. Williams, who is undertaking the daily broadcasting of "The Story of Washington" to advertise the coming Shrine session next June, immediately went up to the hospital to call on the lad and find out just what kind of a set he wanted installed.

The next day Mr. Williams sent to the hospital a specially designed and very compact receiving outfit and himself took charge of its installation.

The lad's friends of Francis' hospital bed were utilized as an aerial, and the set was later plugged in on the hospital electrical circuit.

During the days that followed, while he lay helpless in his bed, Francis chums sent messages, which were picked up at the hospital by the young patient. During the afternoon and evening the musical and spoken entertainment programs offered by the broadcasting stations were picked up and amplified to the delight not only of Francis, but of all other patients in the ward and the nurses and physicians.

Francis was sufficiently well to be taken to his home yesterday, where he has his own set by his bedside.

The idea has taken hold so firmly at the hospital, however, it is said, that plans are being discussed for the installation of a permanent outfit.
